IN THESE TURBULENT TIMES...

IMMERSION

ANGÈLE DUBEAU'S 45th ALBUM IS RELEASED TODAY

Montreal, February 26 2021 — Angèle Dubeau is releasing her 45th album today: Immersion. Recorded with the twelve brilliant musicians of La Pietà, Immersion echoes Pulsations, her previous album which won the Félix prize for Best Classical Album of the Year in 2020. While Pulsations brought together intense works, evocative of strong images, Immersion, the first of three albums to be released this year by the violinist, offers a deep introspective dive imbued with sensitivity.

A lifelong music lover, tireless in her research — she has spent hundreds of hours listening to music since March 2020! —, Angèle Dubeau found for her new album fourteen works “on which I lingered intuitively because I really needed them”, she confides. Works that catered to her emotions and which have provided her with a salutary and necessary well-being in these turbulent and pandemic times. Now she offers her own interpretations to her vast public.

“An album that features composers whose music speaks deeply to me. Music in which I have found a refuge and a wellspring of goodness. Music that is sometimes imbued with finesse, or even purity, fragility, or with meditative gentleness and that can provide an introspection into one’s emotions. An IMMERSION in oneself. Bravo to the wonderful musicians of La Pietà who, through their talent and their sensitivity, brilliantly accompanied me in this immersion.” — Angèle Dubeau, O.C., C.Q., O.M.

Here is a look at the works created by eleven composers whose authenticity touched and inspired the violinist. And for which Angèle Dubeau has, once again, let her stellar playing be at the service of her deepest emotions.

“Here, works by Philip Glass, Ludovico Einaudi and Michael Nyman, composers for whom we know my attachment, stand alongside those of: Armand Amar, whom I recently discovered and it was love at first sight! I listened to almost everything he wrote and decided on Human, Inanna and Planet Ocean, a collage of short pieces; Jonny Greenwood, active member of Radiohead and multi-instrumentalist that I have been listening to for quite a while! Playing the viola, he also composes a lot of music other than rock. I present here a suite of his compositions- with a light title! - There will be blood; Olafur Arnalds, whose refined music, often imbued with melancholy, evokes the contemplation for his native Iceland. An emotional cocoon that was so welcoming last spring; Uno Helmersson, whom I contacted upon hearing the wonderful Time lapse, explaining my wish to rephrase it in a longer version. He not only approved of the idea, but tailored it to me; Dario Marianelli, an Italian, a true romantic! His music sings, cries, speaks directly to the listener and this violinist ... so beautiful! “ — Angèle Dubeau, O.C., C.Q., O.M.

ABOUT ANGÈLE DUBEAU With a remarkable career spanning more than 40 years, including concerts in as many countries, countless awards - notably 18 Félix awards for Best Album of the Year, the most received by any artist in the history of this award! - Angèle Dubeau continues to leave her mark on today’s musical landscape.
